The Cambria Hotel New Orleans is a new-build, ideally located at 632 Tchoupitoulas Street, nestled into the trendy Warehouse/Arts District, just four blocks from the Mississippi River and the historic French Quarter. The galleries, shops and museums of the neighborhood are just steps from the hotel and visitors will enjoy easy access to the best restaurants and music clubs of the City.

Designed to fit into its historic context, it is a simple palette of bricks, steel and glass, with a contemporary design, giving the building a timeless but distinctive appearance. Design elements of the boutique hotel are modern, playful and uniquely local, including a comfortable lobby lounge, with an accent wall featuring ceiling medallions reminiscent of grand, old New Orleans homes. Pressed tin panels are used throughout the public spaces as ceiling and elevator finishes and the walls on the ground level are lined with reclaimed antique bricks.

A gallery of rotating exhibits by local artists greets guests and punctuates the fact that this new hotel is very much a part of its surrounding neighborhood. These unique pieces are available for sale, with the proceeds going to the artist. This is a partnership with Where Y'art, a tool to discover, shop and experience the best of New Orleans art online and in person.
